Earth Day partnership

Metro is pleased to announce that we are once again partnering with Earth Day New York for this year's Earth Day. Be sure to pick up Monday's special Earth Day edition, with op-eds by Chris Noth and Matthew Modine, plus stories about how to make New York a greener city. Then attend the Earth Day celebration Tuesday, April 22, at Union Square from 11 a.m. to 7 p.m. and enjoy kids' activities, environmental exhibits, concerts, green product samples and more.

Long weekend

Please enjoy today's special weekend edition of Metro, as we will not be publishing tomorrow in honor of Good Friday. As always, our newsroom remains busy with updates 24/7 on www.metro.us.

Lower Manhattan goes to the movies

Cinema-a-rama. The Tribeca Film Festival returns with a ton of diverse films in tow.

The story is that the Tribeca Film Festival was founded in response to the 9/11 attacks, as a way of breathing life back into Lower Manhattan. That might be mere myth; some say it was in the works already. But since its inception in 2002, it has grown and thrived, becoming a more sprawling counterpart to the fall's more selective New York Film Festival.

This year's TFF, which starts Thursday and runs through April 27, offers the usual film festival rash of indies starring familiar faces. Emma Roberts is revelatory in Gia Coppola's teen drama "Palo Alto," based on a book by James Franco, who also appears in the film. Franco pops up in Paul Haggis' "Third Person" as well, alongside Mila Kunis, Olivia Wilde, Liam Neeson and Kim Basinger. "The One I Love" pairs Elisabeth Moss with Mark Duplass. The besties comedy "Life Partners" boasts Gillian Jacobs, Leighton Meester and Gabourey Sidibe. Jon Favreau's "Chef" boasts Sofia Vergara, John Leguizamo, Scarlett Johansson, Dustin Hoffman and Robert Downey Jr.

Earl Lynn Nelson and Paul Eenhoorn hit Iceland in "Land Ho!" SONY PICTURES CLASSICS

But TFF is big enough to make room for tiny indies-that-could from home and abroad. Likewise, it's a fine place for documentaries and locally themed work. Plenty fit both categories. "This Time Next Year" looks at Long Beach, N.J., a year after its devastation by Hurricane Sandy. Actor and director Michael Rapaport celebrates the Knicks with his ESPN film "When the Garden Was Eden." "Time Is Illmatic," the fest's opening night attraction, looks at Nas' landmark "Illmatic" on the occasion of the album's two decade anniversary (it turns 20 on Monday). Nas will be present to perform the album following the screening.

TFF will also feature works-in-progress from major filmmakers. The team behind "The Cove" will show a rough cut of "6," their film about endangered species. In addition, the insanely prolific Alex Gibney ("The Armstrong Lie") will show an early version of his epic look at James Brown.

Jane Rosenthal, Craig Hatkoff and Robert De Niro founded the festival, which last year attracted more than 450,000 attendees, its largest turnout ever.

Metro will run coverage of the films and events throughout the fest.

What to see

- 'Ballet 422' The "star" of "Girls" cinematographer Jody Lee Lipes' doc is Justin Peck, a 25-year-old member of the New York City Ballet, as he choreographs the company's 422nd work. Lipes painstakingly shows how much sweat and anxiety goes into what amounts to a relatively brief performance.
- 'Journey to the West' The latest from Taiwanese minimalist Tsai Ming-liang is a maximalist work, in that the film — a series of long takes that find a monk (Lee Kang-sheng) walking very, very, very slowly in public places — will be projected onto MoMA PS1's immersive geodesic VW Dome.
- 'Land Ho!' Two aging ex-brothers-in-law played by "This Is Martin Bonner"'s excellent Paul Eenhoorn and, in a star-making turn, Earl Lynn Nelson, cavort about Iceland in the latest from Aaron Katz and Martha Stephens.
- '1971' Johanna Hamilton examines a bizarrely obscure piece of history in this documentary about citizens going Edward Snowden 40-plus years ago. The crazier-than-fiction tale details how anti-Vietnam War protesters broke into an FBI office in Media, Pa. But Hamilton never loses track of the people in the story, some of whom now question whether what they did was right.

Muslim leaders skeptical of NYPD

The decision to shutter the New York Police Department's unit tasked with tracking the Muslim community was met with much political fanfare, with city leaders praising the decision as a victory for civil rights.

By Wednesday, however, advocates expressed a combination of relief and restrained optimism. Although pleased about the department's efforts to work with the Muslim community, some members are waiting to see how those efforts take shape.

"News that Zone Assessment Unit is disbanded is welcomed," said Linda Sarsour, executive director of the Arab-American Association of New York, "but people are still skeptical. It will take years to roll back trauma that NYPD intelligence caused the American Muslim community."

Sarsour said on Wednesday that the tone of conversations with police has shifted since Bratton took the top cop post in January.

But tone of the conversation is only part of the equation for groups that have spent the last few years fighting what they describe as the NYPD's unconstitutional targeting of the Muslim community.

One small step

"It may just be a symbolic step, but it is a step."
Fahd Ahmed

"It may just be a symbolic step, but it is a step" said Fahd Ahmed, legal and police director of the Queens-based DRUM South Asian Organizing Center.

Sarsour added that the Muslim community is more than willing to work with the new administration.

"The closing of the Zone Assessment Unit is the start," she said. "The end is when the NYPD ends all unwarranted surveillance of Muslims."

'Nothing' in store for Cyclones fans this summer

Yada yada. The Brooklyn team is hosting a "Seinfeld Night" to mark the 25th anniversary of the show's pilot.

This summer, New Yorkers can get excited about nothing — because the Brooklyn Cyclones are bringing "Seinfeld" — the so-called show about nothing — to the ballpark.

On July 5, the team will host a "Seinfeld Night" 25 years after the show's pilot aired on NBC.

The first 2,500 fans will receive a Keith Hernandez "Magic Loogie" bobblehead and the organization promises "non-stop Seinfeld themed entertainment from beginning to end."

MCU Park will be transformed into Vandelay Industries Park, where uniformed mailmen will throw out the ceremonial first pitch and fans can air grievances at the information table.

Players will wear puffy shirts for batting practice and a game of Risk will be held on the Concourse. Fans can also look forward to some Elaine-style dancing and a cereal eating contest.

The festivities may change between now and game day, according to the team, so watch out for the Soup Nazi or ballpark staff dressed completely in velvet.

"Yada yada yada ... you'll have an awesome night," the Brooklyn team wrote on its website.

Tickets go on sale May 10 at 10 a.m. For more info, call 718-37-BKLYN.

Horseless carriage to be unveiled at auto show

NYClass, the group who wants to ban horse carriages in Central Park, will reveal the electric car they commissioned to replace the carriages at 1:55 p.m. on Thursday at the New York Auto Show at the Jacob Javits Center.

The electric horseless carriage can seat eight people and will be on display for the public. The manufacturer of the vehicle will be there to talk about its features. METRO

East Village. Woman fights off rape attempt

An East Village woman fought off an attempted rapist that she woke to find standing on her bed, police said.

The 32-year-old woman woke around 3 a.m. Saturday and found the man on her bed in her apartment near East 6th Street and Avenue B.

The man sexually assaulted the woman, trying to rape her, but fled after a struggle, police said.

Police said the man broke into the woman's apartment. Investigators believe he may have tried several doors in her building before finding an unlocked one.

The suspect / NYPD

Cops are hoping a sketch of the suspect will help them catch him. He is described as Hispanic, in his 20s, 5-foot-4 and weighing 160 pounds.

Police ask anyone with information about the assault to call Crime Stoppers at 1-800-577-TIPS (8477). ANNA SANDERS

Manhattan. More than $12 million in drugs seized in bust

Three people were arrested this week in connection with an investigation into two suspected Manhattan stash houses where authorities seized 44 pounds of heroin and 17 pounds of crystal meth, believed to have a combined street value of more than $12 million.

Officials said the suspects are members of a "sophisticated" drug trafficking operation based out of two apartments in a Washington Heights building, where narcotics were housed for distribution.

The Wadsworth Avenue building provided the suspects with "easy access" to transportation routes, according to the Special Narcotics Prosecutor's Office.

While conducting a search warrant on one of the apartments Monday afternoon, authorities found $120,000 in a large safe in the bedroom, officials said.

Inside the second apartment, authorities found roughly 44 pounds of heroin hidden in various spots, according to officials.

Bloomberg launches big effort to curb gun violence

Former Mayor Michael Bloomberg ramped up his efforts to fight gun violence Wednesday with a plan to spend $50 million on a network to organize voters on gun control.

The initiative's political target is the powerful pro-gun lobby, including the National Rifle Association, that spends millions of dollars each year to back gun-rights supporters.

Bloomberg's group, called Everytown for Gun Safety, will focus on state and local lawmakers, "corporate boards, and state and federal elections — fields of play formerly occupied almost solely by the gun lobby," according to a statement. REUTERS

Obama announces $600 million plan to fill existing jobs

Second term. His new priorities are to help the middle class and reduce income inequality.

An electrician attaches solar panels. / GETTY IMAGES

On Wednesday, President Barack Obama announced an initiative that will devote $600 million to address a central challenge of today's economy: how to train workers for skills they need for jobs that are open but hard to fill.

American companies will need 522,000 software developers and computer programmers in the next 10 years, as well as 110,000 pharmacists, 224,000 electricians and 941,000 customer service representatives, according to the Bureau of Labor Statistics.

During a visit to Oakdale, Pa., Obama announced a plan to use $500 million in existing Labor Department funds to pay for a competition, the goal of which is to spur employers and community colleges to work together and develop training programs designed to get workers prepared for specific jobs that already exist.

Welders, machinists, dental hygienists and electrical power line installers are also needed, per the BLS. REUTERS

$100M

$100 million will be drawn from a Labor Department fund to support programs aimed at training apprentices in new fields with fast-growing occupations, such as information technology, health care and advanced manufacturing.

Hundreds missing in South Korean ferry boat disaster

The ship. It has a capacity of about 900 people and an overall length of 480 feet.

South Korean coast guards and navy divers resumed their search on Thursday for nearly 280 people still missing after a ferry capsized in what could be the country's worst maritime disaster in more than 20 years.

They will also be seeking answers to many unanswered questions surrounding Wednesday's accident, notably what caused the Sewol vessel to list and then flip over entirely, leaving only a small section of its hull above water.

Rescue efforts on Thursday could be hampered by difficult weather conditions, however, amid forecasts of rain, strong winds and fog.

Of 462 passengers on board the ferry when it set sail from the port of Incheon late on Tuesday, 179 had been rescued and six people had died as of press time.

Teens and teachers

340

Nearly 340 of the passengers were teenagers and teachers from a school near the capital Seoul on a field trip to Jeju island, about 60 miles south of the Korean peninsula.

Parents of missing children faced an agonizing wait for news as they gathered in Jindo, a town close to where ferry capsized.

"My tears have dried up," said one mother, who did not give her name. "I am holding on to hope." REUTERS

Search for missing plane cut short again

The search for a Malaysia Airlines jetliner deep in the Indian Ocean was again cut short on Wednesday when technical problems forced a U.S. Navy underwater drone to surface without finding anything, officials said.

Hopes have been pinned on the Bluefin-21 autonomous underwater vehicle finding the first concrete sign of the plane in more than six weeks of hunting. REUTERS

Kiev forces humiliated. Pro-Russia separatists take armored vehicles

Separatists flew the Russian flag on armored vehicles taken from the Ukrainian army on Wednesday, humiliating a Kiev government operation to recapture eastern towns controlled by pro-Moscow partisans.

Six armored personnel carriers were driven into the rebel-held town of Slovyansk to waves and shouts of "Russia! Russia!" It was not immediately clear whether they had been captured by rebels or handed over to them by Ukrainian deserters.

Another 15 armored troop carriers full of paratroops were surrounded and halted by a pro-Russian crowd at a town near an airbase. They were allowed to retreat only after the soldiers handed the firing pins from their rifles to a rebel commander.

The setback left Kiev looking weak on the eve of a peace conference, when its foreign minister will meet his Russian, U.S. and European counterparts in Geneva. REUTERS

Study. Casual pot use causes brain abnormalities in the young

Young, casual marijuana smokers experience potentially harmful changes to their brains, altering regions of the mind related to motivation and emotion, researchers found.

The study published on Wednesday in the Journal of Neuroscience differs from many other pot-related research projects that focused on chronic, heavy users of cannabis.

The collaborative effort between Northwestern University's medical school, Massachusetts General Hospital and Harvard Medical School showed a direct correlation between the number of times users smoked and abnormalities detected in their brains.

"What we're seeing is changes in core brain regions in people who are 18 to 25 that you never, ever want to fool around with," said co-senior study author Dr. Hans Beiter, professor of psychiatry and behavioral sciences at Northwestern University.

In particular, the study identified changes to the nucleus accumbens and the nucleus amygdala, regions of the brain that are key to regulating emotion and motivation, in marijuana users who smoke between one and seven joints a week.

The researchers found changes to the volume, shape and density of those brain regions. But more studies are needed to determine if those changes may have long-term consequences and whether they can be fixed with abstinence, Beiter said. REUTERS

This latest study supports previous research showing that marijuana use has significant effects on young people because their brains are still developing. / GETTY IMAGES

GM seeks protection against lawsuits

Court order. The car company hopes to block suits over faulty ignition switches that led to a major recall.

General Motors said it would ask a U.S. court to bar lawsuits related to actions before its 2009 bankruptcy, signaling a tougher stance toward legal claims stemming from its recent recall over faulty ignition switches.

GM has said it is protected from liability for claims related to incidents that occurred before it exited bankruptcy in 2009, and has taken steps to raise those issues with the court by filing motions to stay recall-related lawsuits while it asks that bankruptcy court to clarify the extent of that protection.

In a filing with the U.S. District Court for the Southern District of Texas on Tuesday, GM asked for a stay on litigation related to ignition claims until a judicial panel on multidistrict litigation decides on a motion to consolidate the case with other lawsuits and the bankruptcy court rules on whether the claims violate GM's 2009 bankruptcy sale order.

The company earlier filed a similar motion with the U.S. District Court for the Northern District of California seeking a stay on pending litigation. REUTERS

Judicial reckoning

GM emerged from bankruptcy protection in 2009 as a different legal entity than the so-called old GM. Under those terms, "new GM" shed liability for incidents predating its exit from bankruptcy, and any lawsuits related to pre-bankruptcy issues must be brought against what remains of old GM.

- That protection has outraged some safety advocates, politicians and plaintiffs' lawyers, who have called on GM to either waive bankruptcy protection or establish a fund to compensate victims.

American Funds urges password change to avoid Heartbleed bug

American Funds, the No. 3 U.S. mutual fund family, advised customers to change user names and passwords on Wednesday as the number of companies and people affected by the "Heartbleed" bug grows.

The company sent emails to some 825,000 clients, saying they had been exposed to "a very narrow window of risk" related to "Heartbleed," which has been described as the biggest computer security threat since the mass adoption of the Internet.

American Funds also advised customers who logged into AmericanFunds.com from Dec. 12, 2013, to April 14 2014, to create new security questions and delete their browsing histories.

Dan Guido, chief executive of cybersecurity startup Trail of Bits, said more warnings are likely because no company will want to be remiss in trying to protect customers.

"I expect to see a lot more of this," Guido said. REUTERS

Getting the edge at work by going under the knife

Surgery. More and more men are lining up for cosmetic procedures.

It's not just fresh young ideas that have career value nowadays — could a face untouched by life or time be a résumé booster?

But it's not only women lining up for fillers and facelifts; guys, too, want to keep up appearances in the office with a little knife work.

"I've had a good number of male patients who have it done specifically to improve work prospects and their professional lives," says New York City-based plastic surgeon Dr. Matthew Schulman.

"It's shown statistically that there's discrimination in the workplace after age 40. The pressure to be young is very, very real," says "Paul," 45, who works in e-commerce and wishes to remain anonymous. He says he started getting Botox to boost his confidence at work. "When senior management are 28- to 32-year-olds, you do everything you can to compete."

Many men in their 40s and 50s are going in for treatments, but 74-year-old Murray is still active in his business and opted for a neck lift.

"I wanted to take off some years," says the New Yorker. "I am very happy with the results. Many people I'm talking to in business are 25-30. You have to have credibility. They don't want to talk to their grandfather — their uncle maybe, but not their grandfather."

'Exude vitality'

How it works

"They're competing with 28-year-olds, but it's not like we're going to make them look like they're 28," says Schulman. "Men can age and look more distinguished, but at a point they look tired and saggy, and don't exude vitality and look worn out. It doesn't give the right impression. Just like you go to work in a pressed suit and get a good haircut, men don't want to neglect their faces."

"It's a shame," adds "Paul." "I wish society wasn't like this, and aging gracefully and wisdom were appreciated. But it's a growing trend for men that's likely to continue." / FUSE

Man in the mirror

Depp says that he rarely looks like himself. This is true: He loves makeup, big hair, giant coats — anything that hides his everyday goatee-and-scowl look. He wasn't always allowed to do this. Back in the pre-"Pirates of the Caribbean" days of Tim Burton's "Sleepy Hollow," he wanted to give Ichabod Crane some crazy prosthetics. The studio wouldn't let him, as having a grotesque protagonist might potentially turn off viewers. He compensated by delivering one of his goofiest performances — one regularly punctuated with him doing a fantastic, full-bodied faint whenever he witnessed something horrific, which was often.

THE MAN WITH A FACE

Johnny Depp plays a normal-looking man who gets sucked into cyberspace in "Transcendence." Blipp this page to see him actually looking weird through the years. / GETTY IMAGES

Interview. Johnny Depp actually looks like himself, for once, in the sci-fi thriller "Transcendence."

Fans of Johnny Depp may be startled to discover that in his latest film, the techno-thriller "Transcendence," the chameleon-like actor looks like … Johnny Depp. "I knew right off the bat there was no need to go into pink hair, clown nose, Ronald McDonald shoes," says Depp, who has made a habit of taking on roles that involve more than a little white face paint, from Tonto in "The Lone Ranger" to the Mad Hatter in "Alice in Wonderland."

But the most makeup Depp hides behind in "Transcendence" is only there to show the physical deterioration of his character, computer genius Will Caster, after he gets radiation poisoning. "It's always more difficult and slightly exposing to play something that's close to the surface, something that's close to yourself," Depp says. "I always try to hide because I can't stand the way I look. I think it's important to change every time, and come up with something that's interesting."

Eventually Dr. Caster's consciousness is uploaded to a massive computer, keeping him "alive" but turning him into a ghost in the machine — and a face on a video screen.

"I did feel a little bit like Max Headroom," Depp admits. "I guess the worst part is I liked it. I liked being in my little dark room, and [my co-stars] were on the other side. We couldn't find each other sometimes."

And apparently playing a foreboding version of artificial intelligence didn't put Depp off the idea of that theoretical technological advancement. "Having no intelligence, I'm looking forward to gaining something, whether artificial, superficial or superduper," he quips.

OK computer

Technophobia

All joking aside, Depp admits he's something of a Luddite when it comes to new technology — especially the handheld kind. "Things go wrong all the time, especially between me and technology. I'm not familiar with it and I'm too old-school and dumb to be able to figure it out," he says. "Anything I have to attack with my thumbs for any period of time makes me feel stupid. So I try to avoid it as much as possible — to protect my thumbs, of course."

Plus, there's also the fact that by the time he's gotten used to a piece of technology, the world may have moved on. "Think about how technology is moving so rapidly. Things become obsolete very, very quickly," he says. "So let's say Will Caster, in 15 years' time, is going to be in some weird room in Vegas, and people are plugging quarters into him. Right? Who has a mini-disc or laser disc player? It's over."

The millions this gets will be 'for Real'

Religious drama. Greg Kinnear shines in a money-grabber that tries to be more than kitsch.

There's actually a terrific film that could be made from "Heaven Is for Real," the best-selling book in which a cash-strapped Nebraska preacher used his son's near-near-death experience to create a cash cow. Title be damned, it's a story about doubt — not in the Christian faith, which goes unwavering, but about whether you believe your 4-year-old when he won't shut up about meeting Jesus, seeing angels and hanging with dead relatives.

The book is a queasy mix of bald greediness and utter sincerity. The movie is, too. Pastor dad Todd Burpo (Greg Kinnear) is relieved when his son (Connor Corum) escapes from a near-fatal case of appendicitis. He's less sure what to do when he talks of seeing heaven, and generally spouting about things he's had ingrained in his head since birth.

The film does try to be more than kitsch — or it tries to try. The narrative is all about whether Todd should believe his son, even as so many in his small, churchy town do not. But while it allows people to bring up criticisms, it doesn't actually engage. Kinnear's Todd is beset upon by all sides — by mean atheists, by mean parishioners, even, eventually, by his goodly wife (Kelly Reilly). He's even mocked by firemen. Todd doesn't respond — he just makes sad faces. Its debate style could be called an argument through victimization: It wants you to side with him only because everyone else is a jerk.

Disney doc. Learn about nature's cute killers in 'Bears'

Timed to Earth Day, Disney's "Bears" is a fuzzy, visually spacious look at the wild behemoths (and Stephen Colbert's legendary foes) in their natural habitat. Like in previous docs from Disney, there is a storyline at work here. The film follows Sky, a mother bear, and her cubs Scout and Amber as they spend a year trekking through the Alaskan Peninsula, over wintry mountains and lush fields, in order to find some watery spots and fish for/gorge on salmon.

As adorable as it makes Sky and her kids out to be, "Bears" thankfully reminds audiences that these creatures are still hardcore killers who can turn on their own in a minute. This is certainly the case whenever the trio comes into contact with more treacherous bears, like king-of-the-mountain Magnus, who starts eyeing the cubs when fish food becomes sparse. They even have to contend with Tikaani, a scheming wolf who's constantly lurking around.

All the while, John C. Reilly provides cheeky, off-camera, color commentary for what's happening onscreen. While Reilly's signature, dopey voice adds a consistently playful tone to the proceedings, one wonders if the movie needed Reilly's voice at all.

Exhibiting Rash behavior

Writers roam.
After "Community" wraps up, you'll still see a lot of the dean on your screen.

Jim Rash may occasionally act in his writing projects (see his hilarious performance in last year's "The Way Way Back"), but his writing won't infringe on his day job as an actor. Sure, he won the Oscar for Best Adapted Screenplay for 2011's "The Descendants," but he says that after writing an episode of "Community," once was enough.

"I wrote one episode of the season that was sort of given the title of our 'gas-leak year,'" he laughs, referencing the fact that the show's creator, Dan Harmon, was fired after that season (but later returned).

"It was a very gratifying experience," Rash says of being able to write an episode, "but the truth is I was already envious and sort of a fan of Dan's brain … and our writers that he puts together each year, so they don't need me. I'm happy to just play the dean."

And Rash playing the dean makes viewers happy, too. In one highlight from this season, he dresses up as a Payday candy bar and delivers a freestyle rap that gets so real it terrifies him.

Rash also hosts the Sundance show "The Writers' Room," where each week he welcomes writers behind some of TV's biggest shows, such as "Scandal" and "House of Cards" — but wait, isn't there a certain half-hour sitcom on NBC that would make for a riveting discussion?

"I fought hard, trying to get 'Community' in there for the second season, and it's not like they were fighting me, but they had already booked everything," says Rash. "I do want to do that someday, though."

The season finale of "Community" airs Thursday at 8 p.m. on NBC. The season premiere of "The Writers' Room" airs Friday night at 9 on Sundance. / NEIL JACOBS, NBC

Who needs to change?
Me or …?
"Repent therefore, and turn back, that your sins may be blotted out, that times of refreshing may come from the presence of the Lord..."
Acts 3:19
Repentance is the fundamental message of the gospel. Unfortunately, many of us spend more time thinking about all the changes that need to happen around us, rather than the change we need to make in our own lives. The gospel is our opportunity to become what God wants us to be – His servants. Are you willing to change?

Martha Stewart

Tips for a perfect Easter

Let's face it: Your Easter dinner probably won't be as perfect as Martha Stewart's. It's OK! You can at least steal her tips for the big day:

Ham and lamb are classic Easter dishes. Do you have any good tricks for cooking each?
It is getting more difficult to find delicious smoked ham with the bone in, but it's worth trying. Every year, I get my ham from Pat LaFrieda and cook it very slowly in a parchment-lined foil package for the prescribed amount of time. I remove most of the fat layer, score through the remaining fat layer and glaze in a 300-degree oven. Mix about a cup of Cognac with a 1-pound box of dark brown sugar to get a delicious, crunchy layer.

For Easter, I also love to make a leg of lamb that is studded all over with cloves of garlic and sprigs of fresh rosemary and thyme. Roast your lamb in the oven at 375 degrees until the skin is crackling. Remove from the oven and let it rest for at least half an hour before carving.

What are some good activities for kids who are too old for coloring and Easter egg hunts?
You're never too old for a really good Easter egg hung. A treasure Easter egg hunt with difficult clues can make the day. Hide treasures with the eggs and even adults will get into the action.

What's an easy Easter centerpiece?
Colored hard-boiled eggs atop a bed of real hay is always a great go-to.

Jam. This weekend, the Brooklyn Folk Festival takes over the Bell House.

It's heartening to hear that New York City's storied folk scene still manages to keep time with the daily mechanized soundscape.

This weekend's Brooklyn Folk Festival, put on annually by the Jalopy Theatre and Down Home Radio Show, goes beyond the familiar jugs, fiddles and banjos of American folk. The 30 bands taking part in this year's edition demonstrate a global perspective, with performances of Indonesian Gamelan, North Indian classical and Chinese acapella. But don't worry — there's still plenty of old-time string band music hailing from the United States, with dozens of performers coming up from the South.

Festival co-producer Eli Smith considers the event

more authentic than most, comparing it to the influential Newport and University of Chicago folk festivals of the 1960s.

"There are a lot of festivals out there today advertised as 'folk,'" he points out, "but only present singer-songwriters and forms of rock derived from it."

For the musicians themselves, the three-day hootenanny offers more than just a chance to show off musicianship — it also allows them to pay tribute to the spirit of the genre.

"It's about community, plain and simple," Ernesto Gomez, guitarist and singer in Brotherhood of the Jug Band Blues, explains. "It's the people's music." Perhaps the most impassioned tribute this year is a group singalong led by the Jenkins Family band dedicated to folk icon Pete Seeger, who died in January.

Although the festival's popularity has forced it to change venues several times in its six-year history, it remains at the Bell House, a converted 1920s warehouse in Gowanus.

In addition to musical, vocal and instrumental workshops, there's also square dancing, film screenings and, yes, the famous Banjo Toss contest.

Baby news

A girl for Kunis and Kutcher

It looks like it's going to be a girl for Mila Kunis and Ashton Kutcher, according to Us Weekly. Several sources confirm to the magazine that the pregnant Kunis is expecting a daughter. It will be the first child for the soon-to-be-married couple, though Kutcher was previously stepfather to Demi Moore's three daughters. "Mila absolutely loves being pregnant," one source says, while another adds that the equally ecstatic Kutcher "is doting on Mila." No word yet on a due date or a wedding date, though.

1 Coco is getting ready for baby Ice-T

Speaking of famous fetuses, it looks like there will be one for Coco and Ice-T as Coco told In Touch that the couple is trying to get pregnant.

"Ice and I are very organized — we keep a list of what we need to do, and right now having a baby is next on the life list!" Coco told the mag. "I'm prenataling it with vitamins and everything to get my body prepared."

It will be exciting to see Coco with a baby bump — it'll help her look a little bit more proportional.

There will be a lot more Wahlbergs in Paul and Donnie's future (of the hamburger and Jenny McCarthy variety). WIREIMAGE

2 Wahlburgers announce North America domination

Yesterday was a huge day for Donnie Wahlberg. Not only did girlfriend Jenny McCarthy announce their engagement on "The View," but he and his brothers (Mark and the poor, forgotten Paul) said they're expanding their Boston casual-dining spot, Wahlburgers. (If I were Donnie, I would be more excited about introducing Wahlburgers to casual dining fans throughout North America than being engaged to Jenny McCartney. But that's just little ol' pro-vaccination me.)

"These are the next steps in building Wahlburgers into a great and enduring worldwide brand," said Mark Wahlberg in a statement. The expansion plans include Boston, Philadelphia and Toronto, where it will be renamed Wahlburg-ehs (just kidding, Canada!).

Rollin' with the homies

You can cycle right to a Michelin-starred restaurant with this sleek look. Just check your helmet with the hostess.

1 Create a deep side part and mist with hair spray. Use a fine-tooth comb to smooth out your hair and pull it into a side pony at the nape of your neck — place your pony on the same side as the larger parted section. Secure your ponytail with an elastic just under your ear.

2 Take a small section of hair and wrap it around the elastic to hide it, securing with a hairpin.

3 Using two fingers, wrap the ponytail carefully around until it creates a hollow roll. Pull out your fingers and secure the roll with hairpins, pinning it just above the base of the ponytail. Finish with hair spray.

This roll is no ordinary bun. / VALERIE STAR

Cute hairstyles for cyclists

Beauty. Avoid helmet hair with these quick and stylish looks.

This fishtail style stays in tight so it won't fall out while you ride.
VALERIE STAR

Valerie Star of Caravan Stylist Studio taught us how to create trendy hairstyles that will stay put under a helmet. Star likes to start all hairdos with a dry shampoo, like Sexy Hair's Volumizing Dry Shampoo, and a beach spray for texture. The dry shampoo adds volume and keeps hair looking fresh after a long day of sweaty cycling. Here are her step-by-step tutorials on chic styles you can do at home before you go riding.

The Seashell Fishtail French Braid

1 Mist your hair with some texturizing spray; Star suggests Style Sexy Hair's Spray Clay. This will help your hair hold and stay in the braid no matter how fast you're zooming through that bike lane.

2 Make a deep side part in your hair. "A great guide to where the part should be is just above the arch of the eyebrow," explains Star. If you want, you can add a little hair spray, like Sexy Hair's Get Layered, to get rid of any flyaways. Start French braiding at the part along your hairline. You can create a regular French braid or a fishtail braid.

3 Continue to braid down your hairline toward your ear, then braid toward your other ear and finally, down to the end of your hair. Secure with an elastic band and mist with hair spray.

4 Tug at the sides of the lower half of your braid with your fingers to loosen it up a bit. Twist the braid down and around, into a "seashell" behind your ear. Tuck the end of the ponytail into the shell and use hairpins (which stay in better than bobby pins) to secure into a bun. Finish with more hair spray and you're good to go.

FAMILY DRAMA

Sharing secrets can forge bonds, but it's not always smooth sailing.
WARNER BROS. ENTERTAINMENT

I'm stumped: My mother and my long-time partner went out for mani/pedis. When my girlfriend came home, she said my mother let it drop that she's angry that my father no longer romances her or shows emotions. What, if anything, should I do? I want to help, but I'm pretty sure it's none of my business — and it'd be awkward as hell.

Your question is actually about three couplings: mom and dad, mom and your girlfriend, mom and you. We have varying degrees of love, commitment, trust and (over)sharing with the people in our lives. It can be painful to discover that one, or both, of your parents is suffering. You are a good son who wants to help your mom, but you don't want to delve too deep into a chat about her sexytime with dad. Here is my advice:

Mama says

Pay attention to what your mother tells you

Has mom ever brought up her relationship to you? If so, those conversations probably got weird and you tuned her out. Next time, use it to enter an open conversation. Tell her you want to help, but be clear about what makes you uncomfortable — including her talks with your lady.

Set boundaries

Your mom and girlfriend have a friendship that includes cute toenails and gossip. If your mother needs an ear for private marital frustrations, and your girlfriend wants to listen, ask your lady to stop tattling. Or, at the very least, ask that she keep you on a need-to-know basis.

Step back

You must accept that neither your parents nor their relationship is flawless. Good souls want parents to be happy, but you must give them space to be the flawed humans they are.

Phone app. Just the ladies on Dattch

Robyn Exton, founder of Dattch, has hit it big in the U.K. with her new women-only dating app. Unlike other apps, like Tinder or Grindr, Dattch users create Pinterest-like profiles with visual boards of their interests and personal photos.

Now, Dattch has made it across the pond into the U.S. The app just launched in San Francisco, and Exton plans to release it in other U.S. cities in the next few months. We spoke with Exton about what makes Dattch so special.

What does Dattch mean?
Dattch, in its short version, means "date catch."

When did you come up with the idea for the app?
The idea originally came up about two years ago now. I had been working at a branding agency and was working with a dating business and I found the space really interesting. I got the idea for it and spent the next six months building a bootstrap fund and saving money for it. I quit my job a year and a half ago.

How did you come up with the idea?
I was in a pub with a friend and she had broken up with a girlfriend. She didn't want to use a dating site and we said, "Get over it — everyone does it." As we went through the process, we thought, "This is terrible. We use these products we don't even like. It's a hugely missed opportunity not to use a product people actually like and want to use."

Is your app geared only toward lesbians?
It's geared toward women. Sixty percent of our user base identifies as lesbian and the other 40 percent identifies as other, which includes bisexual, curious, pansexual — anyone who doesn't identify as fully gay. I think there's a much bigger demand among women to have a safe, secure space to meet other women for friendship, sex, relationships or anything else.

Why did you go with such a visual concept?
We did that because we had an exclusively female community for the very first time and we wanted to see how women wanted to use our app. During our beta tests we found that when we were using structures that were similar to other dating products, it just didn't work. The way women behave when they're dating is different, so we built based on what we were seeing and learning. ANDREA PARK

Tasty chicken and waffles north of the Mason-Dixon

It doesn't get much more comforting than this soul food specialty. We rounded up some of the best.

MEREDITH ENGEL

1 Sweet Chick

164 Bedford Ave., Brooklyn, 347-725-4793
Chicken and waffles ($16) is the bread and butter at this rustic Williamsburg corner joint, which has picnic tables for you to sit at and mason jars for you to drink out of. As if choosing your waffle flavor weren't hard enough (classic, bacon and cheddar, rosemary and mushroom or dried cherry), you'll also be tasked with deciding between house-made butter choices (herb, berry and lemon-honey). Life can be pretty tough sometimes.

2 Terroir Park Slope

284 Fifth Ave., Brooklyn, 718-832-9463
The wine bar's take on the dish ($14) for brunch features rosemary-infused waffles and olive-oil fried chicken.

3 The Strand

25-27 Broadway, Astoria, 718-440-3231
Come for the eats, stay for the bluegrass. At the massive indoor hall (which used to house a Blockbuster, RIP), order up a Spring Packer (Boston Bitters, Penny Packer Bourbon, Lemon Thyme Soda and Mint) as you munch on their brunch offering ($10).

4 Clinton St. Baking Co.

4 Clinton St., 646-602-6263
If you feel like waiting on the notoriously long line, know that your patience will be rewarded when you dig into the restaurant's chicken and waffles ($17), which comes with honey-tabasco sauce and its specialty, warm maple butter.

5 The Writing Room

1703 Second Ave., 212-335-0075
The former Elaine's now houses this tribute to the famous faces who used to frequent her spot. Chef Lucas Billheimer's fried chicken tastes like the good stuff you remember from Roy Rogers.

See more at www.metro.us

6 Pork Slope

247 Fifth Ave., Brooklyn, 718-768-7675
Dale Talde's chicken and waffles sandwich ($12) is loaded with American cheese, bacon and Sriracha maple syrup.

7 Restaurant Marc Forgione

134 Reade St., 212-941-9401
Star chef Marc Forgione blends old and new tradition with his crispy fried quail with waffles ($17). Want to make it at home? The recipe is in his cookbook, "Marc Forgione: Recipes and Stories from the Acclaimed Chef and Restaurant."

Cocktail of the week

Peep-tini

Peeps: You either love them or loathe them. If these strange marshmallow treats hop into your Easter basket uninvited, make use of them with this fun sipper.

Ingredients

- 1 ½ oz. Sobieski Lemon Meringue Vodka
- ½ oz. white chocolate liqueur
- 1 oz. cream
- Sugar
- Peep for garnish

Directions:

Dip the rim of a chilled martini glass into sugar to coat. Add Sobieski Lemon Meringue Vodka, white chocolate liqueur and cream in a cocktail shaker with ice. Shake and strain into sugar-coated martini glass. Garnish with a Peep and serve.

PARTY

'90s Nickelodeon Party

Friday, 8 p.m.
Videology
308 Bedford Ave., Brooklyn
$5, 718-782-3468
www.videology.info
Presented by TV Hangover, enjoy the best decade of Nickelodeon with episodes of classic hits like "Clarissa Explains It All," "The Adventures of Pete & Pete," "All That" and more. But since we're not kids anymore, we can also indulge in drinking games, trivia, prizes and plenty of terrible '90s music we now know is far more terrible than we could've imagined. Who knows, maybe Sam will crawl through the window and pay us a visit!

New York's Next Top Drag Queen Contest

EASTER

What could be cuter than an oversized Easter bunny trying to beat you up? / PROVIDED

Full Bunny Contact

Tonight through April 20, Various times
Clemente Soto Velez Cultural Center, 107 Suffolk St.
$10-$60, 212-260-4080; www.fullbunnycontact.com
The craziest egg hunt and Easter festival includes a bunny beauty pageant, a 10-minute egg-decorating contest, a temper-tantrum candy contest — yes, your 8-year-old is encouraged to act up and win candy — game booths, food trucks, a DJ and more. The main attraction is a steel-cage match where attendees are locked in a 16x 20-foot cage with bunnies who'll try to stop them from collecting Easter eggs. Are you smarter than a bunny rabbit?

Quiet Events Hosts Battle of the DJs

April 22, 9 p.m.
42 West
514 W. 42nd St.
$15 ($25 at the door)
www.quietevents.com
It's a DJ battle you can have in your grandma's house! Partygoers will get a set of headphones when they walk in, and they can choose to listen to one of three of NYC's hottest DJs — Alex Cecil, Steve Sidewalk or DJIzzyE. Each headset has a color LED that indicates what you're listening to, so picking dance partners is easy.

BOOKS

Food Book Fair's Pop-Up Bookstore

Friday through April 27, 10 a.m.
Wythe Hotel
80 Wythe Ave., Williamsburg
Free, www.foodbookfair.com
Kicking off the Food Book Fair a week before its official opening, Word presents a pop-up shop featuring hand-selected titles, including cookbooks, memoirs, magazines and books about science, agriculture, art and urban design. There will also be a series of salon-style talks with the likes of Erin Gleeson, Allison Kave, Laura Silver and Tim Wendelboe.

Horoscope

♈ Aries | March 21-April 20. Others will seek your help today. Take the time to listen to their problems, even if you can't provide a solution.

♉ Taurus | April 21-May 21. You will be able to perform at an amazing level today. Your value will be noticed if you mix work with pleasure. Take advantage of any social invitations.

♊ Gemini | May 22-June 20. Share your goals with your superiors. If they don't know what you want, you won't get the opportunities to advance.

♋ Cancer | June 21-July 22. Children in your life will be quite observant today. Take time to listen to what they're saying.

♌ Leo | July 23-Aug. 22. Enlist friends and family to help with home improvements. Renovations will be more expensive than anticipated, but you will be pleased with the results.

♍ Virgo | Aug. 23-Sept. 22. Someone from your past will make an unexpected return. Don't let stressful situations eat away at you.

♎ Libra | Sept. 23-Oct. 22. Your budget will suffer if you purchase expensive gifts. Concentrate on earning money rather than spending it, and offer support, not cash, to others.

♐ Sagittarius | Nov. 22-Dec. 21. Make commitments for the right reasons. Don't sign on for something you don't believe in to gain acceptance.

♒ Aquarius | Jan. 21-Feb 18. Keep your thoughts to yourself at work. Wait for a more favorable time to make any requests of your superiors — right now, just stick to doing your work.

♓ Pisces | Feb. 19-March 20. Joining a social group will introduce you to new and interesting people. Have some fun, let loose and enjoy life. BERNICE BEDE OSOL

Bag tax is just excuse for revenue

Regarding the latest proposal to charge 10 cents for plastic grocery bags, if the City Council and Public Advocate are sincere about reducing waste (rather than just seeking a new stream of revenue which we all know is the case), they'd be better off instead passing a law banning excessive packaging, which is about 50,000 percent more of our trash output than plastic bags are. If they don't, they're only trying to create a bag tax to siphon more cash out of us. And of course I reuse all my plastic bags for trash, like most people do, so there is no waste at all produced by them.
MILTON KATZIS, BROOKLYN

By the numbers

Re: 'Still Strong one year later,' April 15: I enjoyed reading your tribute to last year's Boston Marathon victims, especially your moving interview with Carlos Arredondo. However, I did find one thing quite curious: your choice of bib number worn by the runner on the cover of the paper (21756). If we look at that number as a date (2-17-1956), it turns out to be the date of the 20th Congress of the Communist Party of the Soviet Union. A very interesting choice indeed.

METRO'S FANTASY GURU BREAKS IT ALL DOWN.

MLB news

Free agent Joel Hanrahan, coming off Tommy John surgery, is scheduled to throw for a fistful of teams Thursday. Some of those teams, including the A's and Mets, need a closer.

EXAMINING NEXT YEAR'S NBA STUDS

The horse has already left the barn on guys like Anthony Davis, Kyle Lowry and Isaiah Thomas. There will be no value in them next year. But before we put the season to bed, it's worth thinking about next year's breakouts while they're fresh in our mind.

The key thing we're looking for is an uptick in playing time coupled with a roto-friendly game. That means "hidden" assets, like field-goal percentage, steals or blocks.

Taj Mahal

It's enough already with Carlos Boozer. He's 32 years old, set to make $16.8 million next season and publicly gripes about playing time. Most importantly, Boozer is a far inferior player to Taj Gibson. The Bulls are expected to rid themselves of the problem this summer via the amnesty clause, opening the door for Gibson to become a legit stud. In eight starts this season, Gibson averaged 19.3 points, 9.8 rebounds and 1.8 blocks.

Only four players averaged 16 points, five boards and five assists this season, but Oladipo could join them next year. / GETTY IMAGES

O for Oladipo

Rookie Michael Carter-Williams captured the hearts of fantasy owners, but Victor Oladipo wasn't far behind. He showed an ability to function as a point guard, which is crucial as the Magic decide on Jameer Nelson's future. Oladipo is an excellent bet to join the 16-point, five-rebound, five-assist club.

Report: Giants sign Freeman

The Giants added a veteran backup for Eli Manning with the signing of former Buccaneers quarterback Josh Freeman on Wednesday.

Manning underwent surgery on his left ankle just last week, but he is expected to be ready to begin working out again in four to six weeks. He has started 151 consecutive games, the third-longest streak by a QB ever.

Freeman was a first-round draft pick by the Bucs in 2009, but showed only occasional glimpses of talent. He clashed with head coach Greg Schiano and was cut by Tampa Bay midway through the 2013 season. METRO

NFL. Jets sign free agent Chris Johnson to two-year contract

The Jets got their big-play threat Wednesday as running back Chris Johnson signed a multi-year contract.

The team made official the capture of Johnson on Wednesday afternoon, following a meeting with the All-Pro running back at the team's facility the day before. Johnson is one of two big names hauled in by the Jets this offseason. Former Broncos wide receiver Eric Decker signed as a free agent in March.

Metro New York reported on Tuesday that Johnson had left the team facility following a meeting with Jets management and had an offer on the table for a multi-year deal. At the time, the team source said "a contract was offered to Chris that was attractive and certainly at his value."

The Daily News reported that Johnson signed a two-year deal.

The Jets confirmed the signature late on Wednesday afternoon. A team source told Metro the Jets plan to utilize Johnson like LaDainian Tomlinson, a free agent who signed with the team in 2010 and rushed for 914 yards in his first season with the Jets. KRISTIAN DYER

CLIENT TESTIMONIALS:
- Robert From Long Island: I own a restaurant and was having very serious money problems, i went to several psychics and they all told me that some body was doing black magic voodoo on my to ruin me, but nobody helped me, Mr Shaman saw me and he told me to stop paying money to psychic, he told me that there was not voodoo on me and that I was fine, the real problem in my business was an employee stealing money from me, thanks Mr Shaman For your help.
- My husband was cheating on me and when i confronted him, he left me and run to the other woman, he humiliated me posting pictures with her and our kids on the internet, he rejected me for months, Mr Shaman Brought him back in less than 5 days, thanks Mr Shaman. Judith from Brooklyn.
- My name is Sandra, I"m Italian and I came to see Mr shaman all the way from long island because the sales in my business where dropping dramatically, Mr Shaman saw that my ex-mother in law was doing witchcraft on me as revenge for leaving her son, who was an abusive man, thanks to Mr Shaman we where able to stop her, and my business is better than ever.
- Hello My daughter was in a very bad relationship this man made her a drug addict, he used to hit her in the face, but she refused to leave him, I went to Mr Shaman with my wife, he help us and my daughter left this guy after only 2 days.
